FOREWORD

In this, the first volume of the Centralogue, published by the Class of 1932 and the Press Club of Central High School, our aim has been to record the year's activities, and to perpetuate the spirit of our undergraduate life.

As the years come and go, may these happy remembrances bring you much joy and happiness.

DEDICATION

to

CHARLES E. METZGER

whose sincere interest and understanding have won for him our admiration and esteem, and whose wise council and generosity will continue to inspire us in the years to come; we, the Press Club and the Class of 1932
dedicate this

Centralogue

CLASS HISTORY

In the beginning there was a group of breathless children, with faces of an unmistakably green hue. Yes, they were the last Freshmen to enter the Hopewell High School. Their coming was too much for the old building, who gave up the ghost about the middle of that year—1928. Who will ever forget how we charged through the halls and up the weakening steps to the tune of "Vote Yes!"

There were thirty-seven of us then, under the leadership of Miss Benner. Claire Vansant, popular Hopewell miss, was our first president, assisted by an able cabinet of Helen Yard and George Atchley.

We early won a reputation as successful money-makers when the school clamored for our peanut and rootbeer sales. Should we mention our first modest dance—the Freshman Skip?

With backward glances of sorrow and forward looks of expectancy, we entered the new Central High School in 1929. Here the Titusville students joined our ranks. Again Miss Benner took us in hand.

A new school demanded a new beginning, so we chose Delbert Cox as president, assisted by Anna Palmatier and William Sangston. Mr. Foster quelled all initiation uprisings, and so, aside from our successful jello sales, we had an uneventful year.

We were all used to each other by the next year—1930—and were glad to get back to renew friendship in our Junior class. A whispering campaign took place during the summer, swelling the total of class members to fifty. Miss Katharine Riedel and Miss Burton were our advisers. You see, it now took two people to keep our exuberant spirits subdued.

Virginia Clayton, Titusville representative, presided in the chair. Marjorie Kite and George Atchley aided in the administration. Our jello sales were continued by popular demand.

Club programs were instituted that year. The class of '32 was represented in Dramatics, Library, Glee Clubs, and practically the whole newspaper staff consisted of Juniors.

We are proud to announce that that year the silver cup for scholarship and all-round activity was awarded to Esther Blanchard.

Our last picture is slightly blurred by tears. It is that of the class of '32 graduating. There are sixty-three faces there. A class that can increase in number each year certainly shows improvement.

We were glad to welcome Mr. Metzger as our principal and allowed him the privilege of considering himself superior to us. Titusville was again heard from by bringing forth Lester Huff as president. Yes, Miss Burton was still with us. We hope that in working so hard for us, she has not lost her love for us. Alice Martha Van Dyke, Helen Smith, and William Sangston were elected to the cabinet. Our repetition of treasurers can be accounted for in two ways:—either no one else wanted the job, or he was so successful in former years that we hated to deprive him of the satisfaction of seeing "real money."

Every Senior class sells candy—and we did too. Juniors, beware! Also, Christmas cards are lots of fun as a paying proposition. The P. T. A. was kind enough to sponsor a dance for us, and the A. A. allowed us the profits of a basketball game.

But it wasn't all money; we had our social times, too. The Senior play, "The Tightwad," was presented very well. Luella Larason and Bob Nelson were the leading players.

The Washington trip was the climax of the year, and the end of our checkered past.

Lois Miller, historian

CLASS OF 1933

The class of '33 was received by its sister class, the class of '31, at the Freshman Reception held in November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred and twenty-nine. The present Juniors were requested to wear rompers and carry lolly-pops! Appropriate what, Mrs. Holcombe? After this ordeal, we felt that we were treated a little more like human beings, and were at last a part of the high school whose portals we were the first Freshman class to enter.

The outstanding event of the year was our Freshman Skip. Naturally this was a tremendous success, as skipping is one of our main accomplishments. (Refer to Mr. Foster.)

In the fall of 1932 we passed into our Sophomore year, sadder, older, but not wiser. Our basketball team, however, brought us due honor with the girls' team winning over the varsity and a large number of Sophomore boys composing the boys' varsity.

March 13, 1931, ushered in the Sophomore Hop.

In September, 1931, we dragged back "to the little red school-house." This year it was our turn to receive the Freshmen. This we did with a bing-bang reception.

The most important event of the year, however, not only for us but for the entire school, was the Junior Prom, the best given yet. Members of the school and their guests were invited. We were rather surprised when a Freshman came up to Miss Riedel and requested that the lights be turned out! And she was only a Freshman!

This ends our history up to date. In closing, we wish success to the out-going Seniors, a lucky year for the up-and-coming Freshmen, many happy days for the Sophomores, and last but not least, an easy life for ourselves!

WASHINGTON TRIP

The Senior Class of '32 left Central High School, Thursday, May 5, for a hallaballoo in the grand old seat of our government. As we jumped from the bus we tried to shake off some of the hay-seeds, before presenting ourselves to the hotel guests. After devouring the Continental grub, we shook our napkins out and declared it would beat a lunch-box any day. Then the hicks all scrambled to the busses and sat up and "took notice." We could tell you all about how "Charlie" lost ten pounds walking up and down those steps in the Washington Monument, but that's probably an old story.

And wouldn't our teachers "chew the rag" if our study halls were conducted in the same manner as Congress?

Standing up on one foot, with a cup of coffee in one hand and a sandwich in the other, we managed to nourish our bodies enough for the trip to the Congressional Library. Would you believe it, Freshmen—we found some of our old compositions dating 'way back when we used to be where you are now! Our party afterwards cannot be described in print, but we might add that Mrs. Holcombe said she felt very embarrassed when she met two men in the hall at about half-past-two. Oh, Mrs. Holcombe!

Friday morning, due to the fact that we are farmers, no one was late for breakfast. This was our hardest day. We visited many places of interest including Mt. Vernon. It seemed there were other visitors there. And would you believe it—we broke in on a party of the Colonial Dames! We found Mr. Metzger quite interested. These Dames were given special privileges and, as a result, Central was left out. Mr. Metzger tried his best, and finally the guides asked him if he was a Colonial Dame. His reply was merely, "Do I look like one?"

As you know, our Ball was that night. With a skip and a jump, we had some of the old stand-bys of the hotel asking what the noise was about. Our three-piece Jazz Band caused quite a commotion, as some of the other high school heroes took advantage of our hard-earned dollars and had a dance out in front of the hotel. It was the "Continental Punch" that did it. If you don't believe us—just ask George.

As the sun came up over the dome of our Capitol, it found Central still able to toddle along. Our last day was spent "doing the city." Our trip consisted of a tour through the business sections of the city and out to the Zoological Gardens where we became better acquainted with our relatives. Then we rode some more, "taking in" all the sites of the finest embassies and legations.

Making our "fond farewells," we bid the city good-bye, and decided we would have to come again. After we left the hotel we visited the Annapolis Naval Academy. Here the girls tried to look their prettiest and the boys lowered the corners of their mouths, but no one made a catch—at least no report has come in yet. The men on the boat seemed to do a rushing business as "Central" raided the "pop" stand. There was a quality of "dryness" in the crowd—or should we say "wetness"? As the busses pulled away—nearly taking the sidewalks with them—we began to show the "wear and tear" of our busy days. Mr. Metzger nearly forgot he was with us when he started snoring on the front seat. Maybe he was glad he was getting home—maybe.

Speeding along the highways, we yelled ourselves hoarse—as all rubes do.

Time goes on and we soon found ourselves back where we started from, but not in the same condition, regardless of Mrs. Holcombe's endeavor.

CLASS OF 1934

Here's from the class of '34:—
We're "Sophies" now, and the year before
We were "Freshies" who, with our noisy chatter,
Made the Faculty wonder what was the matter.
The big event of our Freshman year
Was the "Freshman Skip" where, as you shall hear,
We arranged with the help of our class advisers
A plan which made the school think us misers.
For when the people at the dance
Got thirsty and did think perchance
The punch bowl must be somewhere 'round,
A bowl of ice-water was what they found!
Being "Sophies" was a lot of fun—
The year had only just begun
When Mrs. Holcombe let us know
That we a party soon would throw.
We arranged to have it on Hallowe'en,
When all the spooks and ghosts are seen;—
Now, by that time we'd a reputation
For belonging to the Scottish nation.
But we furnished doughnuts and cider galore,
Till even .... (?) could eat no more;
Fortunes were told by Gypsies wise;
(Shhh!—One was Miss Houghton in disguise!)
At eleven-thirty goodnights were said
And we scrambled home and hopped in bed;
(Miss Kurtz thinks keeping late hours to be
The reason we can't do our geometry).
Well, after the party, we tried to find
A diversion from the daily grind,
And how the Freshmen's eyes did pop
When we announced the "Sophomore Hop"!
As "History repeats itself,"
And as we wished to keep our wealth,
We in our boldness did not falter
From again providing ice-cold water.
So, in the years to come, when you do see
The return of prosperity,
And when this dread "Depression's" o'er,
You'll know we're being Scotch once more!

CLASS POEM

A is for Anna, witty and wise,
Who appears to be clever in everyone's eyes.

B is for Bill, our treasurer fair,
Who the burden of the bank is willing to bear.

C is for Carleton, the dude of the class,
Who goes with a dear little Ewing lass.

D is for Dorothy Drake, lovable child,
She likes to draw and her manner is mild.

E is for Emma who often announces,
That she will be the first of the class spouses.

F is for Flo, a short little girl,
Who is always wondering if her hair will curl.

G is for Ginnie who feels rather cut—
She just had an operation—for what?

H is for Helen, measured in yards;
Her time is taken by clothes and cards.

I is for an Industrious Senior lad;
It could have been Les—but it isn't! How sad!

J is for Julia, an honest smithy;
Her interest in chemistry looks rather fishy.

K is for kissable someone—
Don't crowd—it's only a pun.

L is for Lewis of math. renown;
He comes from Mt. Rose, a famous town.

M is for Margie, that beautiful song;
We have one in our class, if I am not wrong.

N is for Newton, a little fig,
Who always is doing a little jig.

O is for Orion, a good little boy,
Whose passion in science is to destroy.

P is for Peggy, our own Kate Smith;
Her songs contain some fun and some pith.

Q is for cute—so say we;
Luella would take the honors, wouldn't she?

R is for Bob Nelson, hero of our play;
He used to be a tightwad, but that was another day.

S is for Shep or "Andy Gump;"
When he hears this, will he jump?

T is for True who likes potatoes;
Whether Irish or sweet, nobody knows.

U is for undergraduates, who soon for us will pine;
We will leave in Central halls a long, distinguished line.

V is for Van Dyke. Com. and C. P. too;
If you ask for Alice, two will come to you.

W is for Walt, a home-loving man,
Of whom may be said, "He also ran."

X, Y, Z are for others, too numerous to name,
But we wish you could know them all just the same.

CLASS OF 1935

On October the eighth, nineteen-thirty-one, our class was given a reception by the Juniors. Still rather green, we foolishly consented to give a program, and we, ourselves, admit that it was quite good! The Juniors did their bit by kindly initiating us and furnishing the refreshments, which were eaten by themselves.

On the twenty-fourth of November, we again amused the school by giving a humorous skit about Pocahantus (Pokey Huntus) in pantomime. This day, also, was the day of the Thanksgiving banquet. Apart from too much managing by the Business Manager, Virginia Stover, and a few promptings, the play was received favorably.

THE FRESHMEN

CLASS PROPHECY

The Seers of 1932 have looked into their crystal. Behold! They see:—

Bertha Schiefer in a law office.

Lou Larason and Claire Vansant are the world's best reporters.

Helen Yard spending her future in her old maid's apartment near the Stock Exchange.

Bonnie Moore and Margaret Brown are at Rutger's, studying to become farmers' wives.

And here are Ellyn Hoagland and Lillian True on the stage in a revival of "The Green Pastures."

Esther Blanchard, in the habit of running everything, is in charge of the girls' Olympic games this summer.

Anna Snook is repairing Model T Fords.

Lester Huff is to be the President of the Brophy Hair Pin Factory.

The industrious office force under Lester are:—Mary Moran, Bessie Haas, Anne Woerner, and Roger Chatten.

Adolph Hesse, a chef in a restaurant.

Marjorie Kite, a hostess in a hotel, and just across the room is the head waiter, Frank Kimble.

Adele Jantos is keeping a candy shop.

The leader of the 400 is Mary Newton.

Elizabeth Parsons is a nurse in Washington.

Olive Hagerman, a big business woman, is driving her husband's red car.

The House of Representatives has received Nicholas Castoro, the "scrapping representative."

There is Robert Nelson, sleeping and snoring in his barber shop.

The great state of Texas has a new cowboy—Lewis Roos.

The only Fresh Air Taxicab in Hopewell is run by William Sangston.

A New York hospital has received a red-haired nurse—Dorothy Savidge.

Anna Palmatier has become a walking encyclopedia in a girls' school.

Orion Labaw is a minister.

The new telegraph operator in Washington's Crossing is William Jones.

Lois Miller has become a traveling historian from Central High School.
